Being in quarantine has opened my eyes to all the privileges we as a community take for granted. This COVID-19 pandemic has affected my life in numerous ways. Before quarantine, I would see all my friends at school, go biking with friends from other schools, and play basketball with my teammates. Now that we are stuck in our homes, I miss every part of that. On the plus side of things, my family has gotten closer and we spend more quality time with each other. Although everywhere I go I hear new news about COVID-19, I do not have concerns personally nor globally.
